

The downsides of BPL far outweigh the benefits and this should not be approved. There is no reason that this technology should be afforded the opportunity to impose interference on the rest of the world just because it is being provided by large companies who have enough money to lobby for its approval. A multitude of other, better technologies are available to bring broadband to the masses without bring all the negative baggage with it.